Natura homoeopathic remedies

Dr. Michael Levien with his dedication and passion to make a difference in the world of healing created Natura. Natura represents the success and value of true inspiration on which its existence was founded.

Since 1966, Natura Laboratory has been manufacturing and distributing homoeopathic medicines in South Africa. From its humble conception, Natura continually strives to serve the unique needs of health care practitioners and the public alike by dedicating itself to supplying natural products which are made with integrity. Natura currently provides consumers with a homoeopathic range especially suited to the treatment of common and minor illnesses and to complement the treatment of chronic and more serious conditions.

Natura continues to honour its founding values of passion, innovation and integrity by committing to go the extra mile, both now and in the future.

The Lotus Flower

The lotus flower has traditionally been recognised as a universal symbol of awakening, creation and purity. It starts its life at the bottom of a pond in the mud and slowly grows up towards the water surface continually moving towards the light. Once it reaches the surface the lotus plant begins to blossom and turns into a beautiful flower.

The lotus flower symbolically represents the development of an individual towards enlightenment and consciousness. It also represents the past, present and future as the plant bears buds, flowers and seeds at the same time.

For Natura it symbolises the deep harmonious healing action of its remedies and their unique ability to gently restore vitality and health to those in need. It also promotes the striving to ‘conscious’ caring for all the other beings that inhabit the earth.
Understanding homoeopathy

Q: So exactly what is homoeopathy?
A: Homoeopathy is a system of healing that stimulates the body’s own healing forces in order to overcome disease.

Q: So how does homoeopathy work?
A: According to the principle of ‘like cures like’ a substance that causes symptoms in a healthy person, can be used to treat similar symptoms in a sick person.

Q: What are the differences between homoeopathy & conventional medicine?
A: Conventional medicine has its roots in anatomy, physiology and the ‘chemistry’ focused sciences of biochemistry and microbiology. It is strongly orientated towards eliminating variables in order to find comparable, consistent results. This means that it attempts to treat the symptoms which are common to most people suffering from a particular disease.

Homoeopathy has its roots in the ‘energy’ focused science of biophysics. It adopts a more holistic perspective and encourages that all variables in each person’s experience of a disease are considered. This means that symptoms cannot be viewed in isolation without considering other aspects of the patient’s wellbeing. Unlike conventional medicine, homoeopathy is built on the philosophy that the body has an innate ability to heal itself and should be allowed to do so.

Conventional medicine considers symptoms as an indication that the body has been overcome by disease. Medicines are used as an intervention to act ‘against’ the disease so that the body can return to health. For example, ‘anti-diarrhoeals’ are used to suppress or stop diarrhoea.

From a homoeopathic perspective, symptoms are considered to be part of the body’s attempt to heal itself. Homoeopathic medicines contain no suppressive components and work energetically to stimulate the body’s innate ability to heal itself by promoting or supporting the functioning of the various organ systems. For example, diarrhoea is considered to be the body’s attempt to flush out toxic materials. Treatment focuses on supporting the digestive system but allows the body to completely eliminate the toxic materials. The diarrhoea will automatically stop and the body will then return to health.
Your questions answered

Q: Does homoeopathy take a long time to work?
A: The speed at which a person responds to treatment, irrespective of the type of medicine used, is strongly influenced by the nature of the illness that is being treated, as well as, the health, age and wellbeing of the person. Provided the correct homoeopathic remedy is chosen, an improvement may be expected quite quickly.

Q: Are homoeopathic remedies and herbal remedies the same?
A: Herbal remedies are prepared by soaking certain parts of the plant in a solvent (e.g. glycerol, water or alcohol) to produce a ‘herbal extract’. This is the same as the first stage of preparation for a homoeopathic remedy except the extract is known as a ‘mother tincture’. The mother tincture is subjected to a series of successive serial dilution and succussion steps known as potentisation to produce an energised substance known as a homoeopathic potency. Herbal remedies do not undergo this potentisation process. Homoeopathic mother tinctures can also be prepared from materials other than plants, such as minerals, shells, animal materials, chemical substances, etc.

Q: Are all ‘natural’ medicines safe?
A: Not all natural medicines are automatically safe. Many naturally occurring substances may be quite poisonous to the human body, or may be unsafe to use during pregnancy, or may interact with other medicines that a person may be taking. Herbal medicines in particular need to be used with caution as they essentially are a combination of biologically active chemicals. Their composition may vary from plant to plant and may easily become contaminated during preparation. Therefore, it is important that you use products from a reputable supplier. It is also important to remember that even oxygen can be toxic when taken in high doses, so it is best to adhere to the recommended dosages.

Q: I’ve heard that with homoeopathic treatment, you generally should feel worse after starting treatment before you start to get better?
A: This is not true. You should always consult your healthcare provider should you experience any undesirable change to your condition. An aggravation should be distinguished from an actual deterioration of your condition, by a registered healthcare practitioner.

Circulation

Your heart moves 7500 litres of blood every day and pumps over 2.5 billion times in an average lifetime. This pumping action circulates blood through your blood vessels (arteries, veins and capillaries) in order to deliver oxygen and nutrients to all the different parts of your body. Your system of blood vessels is over 96,950km long. This is long enough to go around the world twice, yet it takes just 20 seconds to pump blood throughout the entire circulatory system. Your heart is only as big as your clenched fist and yet even at rest, it works twice as hard as the leg muscles of a sprinting man. Your heart beat is truly the ‘rhythm of life’!

In today’s society, many people suffer from diseases that are related to poor circulatory function. Heart disease claims more than 12 million lives around the world each year. It is vital that you take care of your circulatory system in order to live a long and healthy life. Natura’s homoeopathic medicines can safely be used in conjunction with conventional medicines to assist with circulatory conditions.

Did you know? Your main artery (aorta) is almost as thick as a garden hose. Your capillaries are so small that it takes ten of them to equal the thickness of a human hair.

Digestion

It is estimated that the average human adult eats about 500kg of food per year. All food must first be broken down into smaller components before it can be used as fuel and nourishment for our bodies. Digestion actually starts the moment you take the first bite of your food. Chewing, together with saliva, starts to break the food down before it passes down your oesophagus and enters your stomach. The food remains in your stomach for between 2 and 6 hours before it is emptied into your small intestine, which is responsible for over 90% of digestion and absorption. Your large intestine carries out the final stage of absorption and prepares to eliminate the waste material. Your digestive system also includes the liver and pancreas which ‘inject’ digestive enzymes and juices to assist with the digestive process.

The digestive system is a common source of discomfort for many people. Over or under activity of any part disturbs the functioning of the entire system and conditions such as bloating, heartburn, nausea or constipation may result. Natura’s homoeopathic medicines help to gently regulate the various digestive organs and encourage healthy, normal digestive function.

Did you know? You produce about 1.5 liters of saliva each day.

Feeling bloated after meals, with heartburn and indigestion putting a damper on your lifestyle? Are nausea and vomiting due to morning or travel sickness making day to day chores hard to swallow? Take Magen to ease distension, reduce gas and soothe abdominal cramps, spasms and indigestion and find relief from nausea, vomiting and heartburn. With regular use of Magen, you can enjoy your days without the discomfort and pain of digestive upsets.
Breathing is generally something that we take for granted, yet on average we breathe about 23 000 times per day. In all senses of the word, inspiration is something we cannot live without. Your respiratory system is a set of interconnected passages that allow air to be transported in and out of your lungs. You take in about half a litre of air with each breath, and even more when you’re exercising.

The upper part of your respiratory system includes the ear, nose and throat, and the lower part includes the lungs and bronchi. Your left lung is a bit smaller than your right lung, to leave some space on the left hand side for your heart.

The respiratory system is most commonly affected by airborne viruses or bacteria that cause unpleasant symptoms like congested sinuses, sore throats, runny noses and coughs. Natura’s homoeopathic medicines can be safely used to treat a variety of common conditions that affect your ears, nose, throat or chest.

Did you know?

If you flattened out all the alveoli in your lungs, they would cover a tennis court. Plants are our partners in breathing. We breathe in air, use the oxygen in it, and release carbon dioxide. Plants take in carbon dioxide and release oxygen.

Female

As a woman, it is important to appreciate just how dynamic you truly are. You are particularly sensitive to monthly fluctuations in hormones which may affect you physically and emotionally.

Oestrogen starts being produced by your ovaries at puberty. It encourages breast development and excess fat to be stored in the buttocks, hips and thighs. Your body shape is influenced by your skeletal structure and quantity and distribution of muscle and fat on your body. For you to be at your optimum healthy weight you should aim to have a body mass index (BMI) of between 18 and 25. Due to the cyclical nature of your body, it is even more important that you try to achieve balance in all aspects of your life so that you look and feel your best. Natura’s homoeopathic female range offers you a variety of solutions for common healthcare issues that you experience as a woman.

Kidney & Bladder

Your kidneys are two bean-shaped organs on either side of your spine. They filter your blood up to 300 times per day to remove waste products from your blood. Waste is then transported away from your kidneys down a pair of tubes, called ureters, to a sac-like bladder that serves as a reservoir for urine. A small tube, known as the urethra, conveys urine to the outside of your body.

Normal urine is a transparent yellow coloured liquid that is virtually sterile. The volume of urine you produce varies between 0.6-2.5 litres per day. It is influenced by factors such as your fluid intake, the environmental temperature, and your emotional state. Common kidney & bladder conditions, which may be experienced by you or your family, may be helped by Natura’s homoeopathic medicines.

Did you know? The entire world’s output of urine would take about 45 minutes to go over the Niagara Falls.

Mom & Baby

There is nothing more wonderful or more terrifying than bringing a child into the world. Your pregnancy is divided into three trimesters which are 3 months each. During each trimester your body undergoes particular changes in order to accommodate the growth and development of your baby. With a newborn, all your hopes and dreams for what they may achieve are constantly on your mind. A baby grows and develops more rapidly in the first 12 months than at any other time. As you watch them grow from day to day, learning and discovering new things, your only wish is that they grow up strong and healthy to realise all those dreams you have and to achieve their own dreams too.

Natura’s homoeopathic remedies can safely support you and your baby as you face the physical & emotional demands of your incredible journey through motherhood.

Muscle, Joints & Bones

Working together your muscles, joints & bones provide both stability and allow movement. Your skeleton is made up of 206 bones, the largest of which is in your upper leg (femur) and the smallest 3 are the tiny bones in your inner ear (incus, malleus & stapes). Muscle makes up about 40 - 50% of your total body weight and generates about 85% of your body’s total heat.

You have six different types of joints in your body. They are classified according to the type of movement they allow: condyloid, gliding, hinge, pivot, saddle and ball-and-socket joints. Aching muscles, joints and bones can be treated by using a combination of one of Natura’s oral homoeopathic medicines and massaging one of Natura’s ointments to the affected area.

Did you know that you now have 96 bones less in your body than when you were born? One person in 20 has an extra rib, and they are most often men.

Arnica D6 is the pre-eminent homoeopathic first aid remedy for all injuries, falls or blows. It helps to reduce swelling and bruising following injuries and it also helps to relieve painful stiff or over-worked muscles following strenuous exercise. Arnica D6 assists in promoting a speedy recovery from all types of injuries.
Skin

Your skin is the largest organ of your body. Not only does it reveal emotional feelings by paling, blushing and other expressions, it also tells a story about the overall health of the rest of your body. No other organ is as exposed to damage or disease; it is especially vulnerable to sunlight, injury and environmental pollutants.

The skin protects underlying structures from injury and acts as a barrier to bacteria and viruses. It contains nerve endings that are able to sense heat and cold, pain, pressure and touch. It also regulates body temperature by producing sweat which, when it evaporates, has a cooling effect. Your skin starts aging when the cells die off faster than the body can replace them. It is estimated that each person sheds approximately 22 kilograms of skin cells in his or her lifetime. Illness, stress, anxiety and depression also add to the aging of the skin. Natura’s homoeopathic remedies can be used to help the body overcome underlying disturbances and restore balance to this vulnerable and sensitive organ.

Stress

Today’s modern lifestyle is highly stressful and our society seems to be more prone than ever to the effects of stress. Scientists and doctors use the term ‘stress’ to describe anything that disturbs the stability and balance of the body or mind. There isn’t a disease or illness in the modern world that is not, in one way or another, affected, intensified or triggered by stress.

Stress research has been dominated by the popular ‘fight-or-flight’ theory. However, recent studies suggest that while men tend to respond to stress by exhibiting ‘fight-or-flight’ behaviour, a woman’s response to stress is to ‘tend-and-befriend’. This involves comforting and protecting anyone affected by the stress, helping them to feel secure and supported. Natura’s homoeopathic medicines can help to rapidly restore a sense of control enabling you to cope more effectively in difficult situations.

Adrenalin is the hormone that your body produces in response to sudden stressful situations. If the stress persists, your body will eventually start to produce cortisol instead of adrenalin.

Tissue Salt - Simplex

Biochemic tissue salts are 12 inorganic minerals that are found in rocks and in soil in nature. All 12 also occur naturally in your body, and if you are deficient in one or more of these minerals you are more vulnerable to illness and disease. The key, therefore, is to keep the body in balance.

Tissue salts were originally identified by the 19th century German physician, Dr. Wilhelm Schüssler, who prepared them according to a special grinding process known as trituration. Trituration makes these minerals easy for the body to absorb so they are effective even in minute doses.

One of the major benefits of tissue salts is that they are very safe and can be used by anyone, including pregnant women, infants and the elderly. Tissue salts can help you to restore wellness from the inside out as they enable your cells to make better use of the nutrients available from the food you eat.

Help your body to heal itself by using Natura’s range of pleasant tasting tissue salts and quickly correct imbalances in the body and restore health.

Did you know?

Tissue salts like most other homoeopathic tablets have a lactose base which gives them a slightly sweet taste. Provided the recommended dosage is adhered to, it should not significantly affect individuals with mild to moderate diabetes.

*(Act 101/1965)
Tissue Salt - Combins

Tissue salt combinations are a new addition to the range of tissue salts originally identified by Dr. Schüssler. For your convenience, certain individual tissue salts have been carefully selected and combined to assist in the treatment of particular conditions.

Tissue salts are traditionally prepared by grinding the starting mineral (e.g. Natrum muriaticum) in a special process known as trituration. Like homoeopathic remedies, tissues salts go through successive stages of dilution, but the dilution specifically takes place in lactose. At no stage is the mineral diluted with either water or alcohol, as is the case with other homoeopathic remedies. True tissue salts are therefore only available in tablet dosage form, while a homoeopathic remedy which may be prepared from the same mineral, may be available in a liquid form.

All of Natura’s tissue salts are prepared by trituration to ensure that your body gets exactly what it needs to quickly correct imbalances and restore health.
